RIDING HOBBY'S

Some people are out of balance and of course eccentric. They get a bunch of peculiar ideas in their heads and it is wonderful how funny some of them appear to people who do not have this exact brand of peculiarity. Eccentric people have given to the world its most useful inventions. They had a hobby and they rode it to a logical conclusion. The geniuses of the world always been considered cranks, and rightfully so, for they are people of one idea, but when the results of their labors begin to bear fruit they have proven of incalculable benefit to the race at large. Riding a hobby is one of the characteristics of the race. Man is wonderfully and fearfully made. He goes forth to meet the new day with a light heart and on the gathering shades of evening find him treading the wine press of loneliness. Riding a hobby may or may not prove of worth. It depends largely upon what bent the mind is traveling. Some people have a hobby to kill. This has a tendency to rend the structure. Others have a hobby to improve everything that comes under their observations. Hobby's have been rode since the beginning of time and be rode to the end. The result of the ride will prove of worth in many instances while in some cases the rider will have ridden to his own undoing. If you must ride your hobby be sure and get it headed right and then ride it to the end that all will be benefitted.

THE FUTURE SOUTH

We are in receipt of a booklet issued by the Board of Trade of Henrietta, Texas. It deals with the subject of the future south and is filled with logical suggestions as regards the duties of those engaged in this enterprise. It also sets out clearly the reasons why the south has been so backward in its struggle for expansion. Among other things it has a good word for the Commercial Secretaries of this state and also the Commercial Secretaries Association. James T. Denton is secretary of the Board of Trade of Henrietta, and judging from the way he handles the situation he is the man for the job. The booklet contains some nice views of the Henrietta country and taken all in all it is a very creditable edition.

TO DISFRANCHISE NEGRO

Senator Cullom, of Illinois, stirred up a hornets nest the other day among the "coons" of Washington, D. C., when in an interview he came out clearly in favor of their disfranchisement.

It has been one of the deepest disgraces that ever rested over this nation, the extension of the right to vote, to a kinky headed coon, that the Lord made for no other purpose save to be a servant of mankind. The only possible bar to the eternal glory of Abraham Lincoln is the thought that he is almost wholly responsible for this outrage on humanity and if the people of the north had as much pride in the purity of the human race as they take in vulgar pandering to pelf they would have stamped it out in less than thirty days instead of waiting nearly fifty years before even giving it recognition as a question of vital moment.

When it is considered that Senator Cullom was a bosom friend of Lincoln's he is apt to be considered a Greek, bearing offerings.

The south has always had to bear the burden of race perpetuity and advancement and if the south had not acted as a mainstay in this one matter the United States would likely be as low mentally and morally as the lowest in the scale of recognized civil nations. About all the south has obtained from the central government for its care of the nation has been to see its rights trampled under foot and a deaf ear turned to its most humble appeal. Regardless of this great handicap the south has gone on from day to day in its development until now the entire world pays homage to its greatness, and though last in line, the brethren of the north are beginning to wake up and take notice.

The negro has been a vexing problem for the south to cope with and the way has been made extra hard by the so-called philanthropists of the north digging in. If the south had been left to work out the negro problem within itself it would have solved the question years ago and the negro would have been far ahead of his present day condition. One serious mistake has been in trying to educate them. They are by nature unfitted for knowledge beyond that necessary to make common laborers of them. In this role they can be controlled. That they must be controlled no man of ordinary intelligence will deny. The first step is to deny them the right of franchise. The rest will be easy. Now is the time to act and these public men of the north who come to the front in this matter will build for themselves a name that will endure, as letters of gold, along the horizon of times endless ages.

A Monster Edition

The Sunday Houston Post of the 7th inst was about the "biggest" proposition of the kind ever seen at this office. It contained one hundred and eight pages of which three-hundred and sixty-eight columns were ads and three-hundred and eighty-eight columns were reading matter and illustrations. One cause underlying this issue was in commemoration of the beginning of carnival week.

The Houston Post has long been regarded as one of the leading papers of the south and it has certainly proven a great factor in the development of the state, especially the southern and eastern part.
